Could you be a Parish Councillor?

St Michael Parish Council speaks up for the people who live and work across our corner of the Hertfordshire countryside — from Potters Crouch and Appspend to Gorhambury, Childwickbury and Pimlico. We're looking for local people to join us. You don't need to be political or an expert; you just need to care about the place you live.

Thinking it's not for you? Have another look —

" I don't do party politics.

Good — neither do we. Our councillors don't represent any party. We simply work together for all local residents.

" I haven't got any experience.

Most of us hadn't either. What counts is common sense and a can-do attitude — and we'll give you the support to fill any gaps.

" It'll take too much time.

That's up to you. The essentials are just four meetings a year, a couple of hours each, plus a few papers and emails — beyond that, give the time that suits you.

" Someone else will do it.

Will they? Our seats are filled by neighbours giving a little time. If not you, then who?

What the council does

We review local planning applications, work with the authorities on roads, infrastructure, policing and community issues, and help shape the future of our corner of the countryside.

Who can stand

Most people aged 18 or over who live or work in the parish — or within three miles of it. Vacancies between elections are filled by a simple process called co-option. Full eligibility rules are on our website.
